The monitoring report developed for the Nottingham Local Education Partnership attracted the attention of Dame Julia Cleverdon, Vice-President Business in the Community.

“...it is quite first class and shouldn't be called the SEKPI report but Carillion's Community Footprint in Nottingham. Our challenge is communicating this great work in ways that catch the imagination of our customers, our employees and our stakeholders – and we need to be leading edge on our communication as well as in our practice...”

Julia Cleverdon was so keen to see the project behind the report that she accepted an invitation to dinner hosted by inspiredspaces Nottingham Ltd and Carillion Plc. The subject for the evening was “Building a Sustainable Future for People and Planet”. We led on this subject with the intention of the leadership dinner to build more partnerships between Private and Public Sector, schools and the local community.

There was a gathering of 22 guests from our local authority customer Nottingham City Council, the management and governance team of The Bulwell Academy, representatives from East Midlands Business in the Community and senior business leaders from the Nottingham area (Boots and Speedo). Key Carillion and inspiredspaces people were also in attendance.

The event was opened by a key note speech from Alice Vickers, Community Regeneration Manager who presented the inspiredspaces monitoring report for socio-economic regeneration, which Julia Cleverdon refers to this as “Carillion's Community Footprint”.

Julia Cleverdon was invited to speak and spoke at length of our performance in sustainability and our commitment to continuously improve. Julia heaped huge praise on Carillion and its performance in the community arena and at length praised and recognised the groundbreaking nature of the “Community Footprint” document.

Business Benefits

- Boosted reputation of Carillion with our local authority customer, Nottingham City Council
- Raising profile of Carillion, LEP and inspiredspaces with other Nottingham businesses

Community Benefits

- Opportunity for students at The Bulwell Academy to have their views heard by business people and local government
- Community benefits arising from discussions held during the dinner
