

Three schools nominated in charity's awards

PUPILS from three schools are in the running for two national prizes.

Big Wood School, on the Bestwood Estate, along with Oak Field School and Sports College, in Bilborough, have produced a 90-second film for a young filmmaker competition.

Belvoir High School has also designed a charity logo for a young designer competition.

Awards will be presented by five-time Olympic gold medalist Sir Steve Redgrave at The O2 Arena, on July 13.

Both competitions are run by the Transformation Trust and the awards will also celebrate the charity's first birthday.

The filmmaker competition is judged by Oscar-winning director David Puttnam.

It challenges schools to produce a film about how their school changes lives.

Entries can be viewed on the Transformation Trust's YouTube channel at www.youtube.com/user/TransformTrust.

Dave Tebb, faculty leader at Big Wood School, said: "We believe we've submitted a great entry and can't wait to attend the event next month."

Georgia Barnes, teacher of media at Belvoir High School, said: "The students have worked hard and learned a lot about filmmaking."
